

Circuit Case No. 15-1099, Wireless Internet Service Providers Association v. FCC, D.C. Circuit Case No. 15-1117, Daniel Berninger v. FCC, D.C. Circuit Case No. 15-1128, because all of the foregoing cases concern direct review of the same agency order.

Petitioners seek review of the FCC's final "Report and Order on Remand, Declaratory Ruling, and Order" in the proceeding captioned In the Matter of Protecting and Promoting the Open Internet, GN Docket No. 14-28 (FCC No. 15-24) (rel. March 12, 2015) ("Order").

In that Order, the FCC duly followed the directives of this Court in Verizon v. FCC, 740 F.3d 623 (D.C. Cir. 2014), lawfully reclassified broadband Internet access service as a telecommunications service, and adopted rules to protect free expression and innovation on the Internet and to promote competition and investment in the nation's broadband networks.

Free Press is eligible to intervene in this proceeding. As a national, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization, Free Press works to increase informed public participation in crucial communications policy debates through education, organizing, and advocacy. To this end, Free Press has actively participated in the Protecting and Promoting the Open Internet proceeding. Moreover, Free Press represents members who would be adversely affected by a reversal of the Order because their activities or businesses depend on access to an open Internet.

Additionally, Free Press relies on an open Internet to communicate with its members, activists, allies and the public in furtherance of its mission. Therefore, Free Press's interest will be substantially affected by the Court's review of the Commission's Order. Free Press is thus a "party in interest in the proceeding" entitled to intervene "as of right" in this matter. See 28 U.S.C. § 2348; 47 U.S.C. § 402(e).
